BO KNOWS COMEDY

Story and Photos by
Sgt. Robert Carlson
Press Chief

During the day he's the mild-mannered director of safety for MCB Hawaii. In his off hours though, he wows audiences across the country with his unique brand of humor and motivational speaking.

Honolulu native Bo Irvine has been practicing his art professionally for more than 16 years, but he got his start in comedy much earlier.

As a fire inspector in the early 80s, he used humor to get his message across to the Marines, Sailors and civilians aboard K-Bay.

"I use humor a lot because it helps people remember things better," he said. "I got a lot of comments from different people saying 'You should be a comedian — you're really funny.'"

Irvine's friends told him the same thing, and he decided to give stand-up comedy a try.

"I entered my first contest because my friends told me I should," he explained. "I won that contest and the next five in a row after that."

The club manager asked Irvine to stop coming to the competitions because he was winning too much and discouraging the other comedians. Irvine's gift was not wasted though, and the Comedy Club in Honolulu chose him from more than 250 applicants to become a full time performer.

"I started out as a regular emcee, and then moved to a middle act, and then became a headliner," he said. "It all happened really quick."

Irvine's talent has taken him all over the United States to perform at comedy clubs, private parties, conventions, and fundraising events.

Comedy is also one of the key ingredients when Irvine does motivational speaking engagements.

"I use my personal ex-

"I am a diabetic, and when I'm the emcee at a fundraising event, or I'm trying to promote a good diet and healthy lifestyle, it's easy to talk about my life experiences," he said. "Everyone with diabetes has the same challenges and the same issues — and they can be very serious. I can use humor though to help people relax and talk about the issues."

In addition to the benefit shows, Irvine performs for virtually any organization that asks him.

Most recently, he spoke to a group of motorcycle industry leaders at the Hawaii Motorcycle Dealer's Association annual awards ceremony. He also speaks at private engagements and does shows at comedy clubs.

Unfortunately for residents of Oahu, there are currently no real comedy clubs here. Irvine performs at clubs in Maui, Kauai, and in the mainland, so it may be difficult to catch one of his shows. He said there may be plans to open a club on Oahu within the next few years though.

Irvine's comedy is unique and versatile, and he can tailor his shows to just about any audience, according to Shipp. Irvine is also scheduled to perform his new "Taliban" song on Perry and Price next week.

For more information on how to schedule a performance, call Pacific Rim Entertainment at 864-4662.

Warriors roll over AMR

Staff Sgt. Jesus A. Lora
Community Relations Chief

Under the cloudy skies of MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, the Warriors were ready to tackle the players from Aliamanu Military Reservation at the Pop Warner football field Sunday.

Before the game, the K-Bay Warriors practiced throwing the ball and running screen plays as the coaching staff gave last minute advice. David McBride and Moses Singletary molded these 14 players into real go-getters, and developed their winning attitudes.

Captains from each team moved out to the 50-yard line and assisted the referee with the coin toss. AMR called tails and lost the toss.

The offense and defense faced each other and waited for the whistle, while cheerleaders threw their pom-poms and displayed their motivation for the Warriors.

Warrior Jeremy Minaya received the ball, rolled out to the right, and took it to the 30-yard line.

More yardage was hard for the Warriors as AMR held their offensive trials. The AMR offense took the battlefield and tried to gain some yardage, but an interception by the Warriors brought their first drive to an abrupt halt.

“We have this game; this is all the kid’s doing, and they’re doing great,” said McBride.

Midway through the second half the Warrior’s Thurman Woods scored a touchdown, giving the K-Bay team a 6-0 lead.

The clouds seemed to blacken the football field as both teams took a five-minute break during half time. The spectators were cheering the players from both sides, and fathers were telling their sons, “Hey get tough, and concentrate.”

The third quarter gave AMR no mercy, and no score. The defense and offense of the Warriors dominated the field and left AMR short of the goal line more than once.

Just before the end of the 3rd quarter, the Warriors screamed past AMR’s kicking team and scored another six points.

With the fighting spirit of their namesakes, the young Warriors held their ground and AMR received no yardage, and still no score making it 13-0, Warriors.

“I feel pretty good about this game, I know we have a good chance to win because our team is confident and really pumped,” said Shaun Maloney, Warriors nose guard.

With less than two minutes left, the Warriors made every play count and drove the pigskin into the end zone.

Down to the wire with 19 seconds to play, the crowd went wild as the quarterback moved into his pocket and drove the ball into the belly of Warriors running back Woods.

Woods turned up the heat and ran around AMR as if they were standing still. The referee threw up his hands and blew his whistle, signaling another six points.

The extra point was stopped by a yellow flag, ending the game 19-0, Warriors.

“We won this game with speed, nothing more than just plain speed. The team had them from the start, we just moved too fast for them,” said McBride.

This is the third game the Warriors have played. They’ve accumulated 60 points, and the defense has allowed only 13 points.

“Good game. We need to work on our passing and blocking. We should have put more points on this team,” said Warrior Marques Green.

Both teams lined up at the 50-yard line and faced each other for the good sportsmanship handshake.

The Warriors held their chest a little higher and carried themselves with a little more pride, after the victory.

“Both teams played outstanding. We knew coming to a Marine Corps base was going to be tough on the team, but they played very hard and gave it their all,” said AMR Couch Parnell. “What beat us today was plain old speed.”

B-Team dominates VP-47

Some of the best Monday night football games can be caught live — with no commercials — on MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, where the teams for the Intramural football league come out to play. On Monday, the B-Team had a rematch with VP-47, but this time, the B-Team brought their "A" game.

When Erik Cyre, quarterback for the B-Team, couldn't find an open man to pass to, he took it upon himself to gain some yards for the team only to be met by the VP-47 defense.

As the sun set over the mountains, the two teams battled at Risely Field.

"Safety, don't let anyone behind you," yelled Gabriel Malarie, quarterback for VP-47.

Unfortunately for VP-47, the B-Team had been practicing, so they didn't repeat the mistakes made the first time these teams faced off.

"We have been practicing and doing some walk throughs, so we can get the feel of our plays," said Jamey Shuemaker, lineman for the B-Team.

Their practice paid off as Erik Cyre, quarterback for the B-Team, threw four touchdowns in the first half.

Malarie didn't have the same luck. The numerous passes he threw were either blocked or landed harmlessly in the grass.

At the start of the second half, VP-47 knew they had to pick-up the pace, with a 24-0 deficit to overcome.

The second half VP-47 defense seemed to mirror the defense of the B-Team. For nearly the entire second half no one was able to make it over the goal line.

That was until Malarie

Cpl. Roman Yurek

lobbed a pass over the B-Team line to Frank Castillo, a VP-47 lineman, who was able to make the first touchdown of the half.

This play may have only earned the team their first six points, but the motivational level seemed to triple because of it.

All the celebrating came to an end for VP-47 when the B-Team was able to score yet again.

This brought the score to 30-6, with the B-Team in the lead.

For the last few minutes of the game, neither team could surpass the other's defense. It was gridlock, but the B-Team was feeling confident that it won because of the strong start it had.

"We did good," said Shuemaker after the hour-long struggle. "We had a strong offense and defense the entire game."

Hammerheads receive HELP from NHL

Cpl. Roman Yurek
Lifestyles Editor

All three age levels of the Youth Sports in-line hockey program received 20 sets of brand new equipment from the Hockey Equipment Lending Program Oct. 18. They are the first team in Hawaii to receive gear, from the program, and the first military based team to participate in HELP.

A ceremony was held before practice to allow the players, coaches and MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, the chance to show their appreciation to Ronnie Van Gompel, president of HELP, and Ted McAneeley, the Hawaiian HELP representative for the donation. “These gentlemen have made life a lot easier for the people involved in the hockey program here,” said Col. John A. Lemoine, the commander of MCB Hawaii. Normally, when a child decides to play for the Hammerheads, the parents must provide gloves, a helmet, and leg and arm pads for their child. The equipment cost, when added to the price of a stick and skates, can easily exceed $500.

With HELP, the cost to play hockey on base has been drastically cut. Players can now receive gloves, a helmet, leg and arm pads free through HELP.

“I’ve seen too many kids standing off on the side of a hockey game, all because they can’t afford it. That’s why we started this program,” said Van Gompel.

Since 1992, the National Hockey League Players Association has purchased all the equipment donated to the teams through HELP.

McAneeley played a major role in getting the equipment to the Hammerheads. A former NHL player, McAneeley has strong feelings about hockey, and living in nearby Akahi Park allowed him to get more involved in helping the Hammerheads receive their gear. “I love the game, it teaches teamwork and discipline,” said McAneeley. “So why not bring it to Hawaii?”

After the ceremony, the players, wearing their new gear, began practice.

Cpl. Roman Yurek

Ronnie Van Gompel speaks to players before they begin practice about his time as an NHL official.

As they skated up and down the rink, their coaches were given hats to show their support for the HELP program. “I love this program and the sport,” said Eugen Lipp, coach for the bantam Hammerheads team. “I grew up in Connecticut playing hockey. Both of my sons play. It’s great exercise, an excellent sport, and it allows me to spend time with my sons.”

For now, the Hammerheads still practice and play, but their parents don’t have to worry as much about emptying their wallets for equipment. The Hammerheads are two months into their season and are scheduled to play through April. For more information about the K-Bay Hammerheads, contact Clark Abbey, the youth sports coordinator, at 254-7611.
